The committee approved changes in the Classical Archaeology and the Classical Civilization concentrations (language requirements and elective courses), and tentatively approved a new major concentration, Classics: Ancient Mediterranean Studies, pending clarification of the connection between this concentration and that in Classical Civilization that the UCC chair will seek with the chair of the Classics, Philosophy and Religion department.

The committee approved changes in the Environmental Geology major to accept EESC 355: Icehouse-Greenhouse Earth as an elective course in the major, and in the Environmental Science: Natural Science Concentration to specify certain Biology courses (BIOL 426, 427, and 428) that satisfy major requirements in this concentration.

The committee approved a request from the Earth and Environmental Sciences department and the College of Education to discontinue the Interdisciplinary Science Studies major.

The following new courses were approved:
